A WORD FROM THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

In the Member Directory last year, I wrote about the VUCA reality and Permacrises, but nowadays we are talking about BANI – referring to a society which is brittle, anxious, non-linear and incomprehensible... It seems as if we are going from one stage to another of uncertainties and it is really challenging times for businesses and Chambers of Commerce. The phrase "we are not isolated islands" means that humans are interconnected and part of a larger whole, a concept famously articulated by John Donne's "No man is an island". It emphasizes that individuals rely on each other for well-being and support, and we do experience that companies see us as an important partner and not an unnecessary cost, also in these unstable times.

From this rather philosophic introduction we come down to earth to confirm that the Swedish Brazilian Chamber of Commerce is standing firm and growing in terms of members, sponsors, and rental services. We are pleased that more companies come to us to use our meeting rooms and auditorium for their own events and internal meetings.

This year we have organized some interesting and different events such as the Plogging recently (picking up trash and separate it for recycling) with many high-level speakers as you can see on page 29. Most of our events today are hybrid which means that members can watch them from wherever they are and whenever.

We have signed a letter of understanding and cooperation with the organization United Way Brasil or Juventudes Potentes which is doing an excellent job in helping young talents from poor regions and backgrounds into work life.

We are steadily growing on social media and I really hope you already follow us on LinkedIn, YouTube and Instagram. Our media partner EVCOM is doing a great job in creating noise about our activities out there in the giant cyber space. The sky is no longer the limit for who we can reach.

Thunder is good, thunder is roar and impressive; but it is lightning that does the work – words from Mark Twain over 100 years ago. Let us be the lightning and make true change!

Talking about thunder and lightning, H&M has opened their first stores in São Paulo with invited famous artists such as Anitta and Gilberto Gil, not only as models but also to sing during the opening event in the Ibirapuera park. H&M is a new (Gold) member of Swedcham which shows that we offer interesting services and a relevant network also to the newcomers, and not only to the "old timers".

In June, we had the Annual General Assembly for Eurocamaras during which Swedcham was elected chair and the Italian and German Chambers entered as Vice. We are organizing two "PRE COP30" events, one on September 29 at VIVO and one on Nov 7 at InvestSP.

Recently I was invited to represent Swedcham and give a presentation on the topic Managing Companies in Times of Uncertainty during the Horasis Global Meeting in São Paulo. Horasis' summits have become some of the most influential high-level global gatherings which every year bring together governments, international organizations, and the business community to offer solutions to global challenges.

The Board for Swedish Chambers International (SCI) had meetings in New York and Washington in September and we met with Swedish and American companies, lawyers, journalists, and lobbyists. The exchange of best practices among some other leading Swedish Chambers around the world is very valuable for our Chamber here in Brazil.

Looking ahead, there are some interesting events and projects before the end of the year; for example, the Career Fair on November 5 with support from the Swedish Embassy and the Swedish Institute (SI) and the Christmas Celebration on December 11.

All these initiatives and conquests would not have been possible without great efforts and hard work of my small but efficient team consisting of Elaine, Vivi, Gessica and Nathalia who always are doing more with less.

Another pillar for the Chamber is Chairman Sergio Quiroga with his support and engagement and positive energy in the Board. At the General Assembly in April, new Board member Peter Dölling from Saab was elected – I look forward to work together with you, the rest of the Board and my team to strengthen the Swedish business ecosystem in Brazil!

YOUNG PROFESSIONALS

The Swedish Chambers' Young Professionals (YP) network continues to serve as a dynamic platform connecting Swedish and Brazilian professionals and students who share common interests and ambitions. With more than 200 active members, YP fosters both professional and personal development by promoting knowledge exchange, career opportunities, and cultural integration, while also assisting newly arrived Swedes in adapting to Brazil.

The year 2025 began with an enriching Corporate Visit to Electrolux Group, one of our long-standing partners and a global reference in innovation. Participants were introduced to the company's trajectory in Brazil, with particular emphasis on its practices in diversity, sustainability, marketing, and organizational culture. The program concluded with a practical challenge in which participants developed marketing strategies for real products, stimulating creativity, collaboration, and applied learning.

In May, YP partnered with the Sweden Alumni Network Brazil to host a special event at Horta das Flores in São Paulo. The initiative brought together members, alumni, friends, and families for a guided tour, an informative session on PANCs (Unconventional Food Plants), and a collective planting activity, leaving a symbolic and lasting contribution to the space while strengthening community ties.

Later that month, YP and the Alumni Network held a convivial Happy Hour & Pizza Night, offering a valuable opportunity for members to reconnect, expand their networks, and engage in informal exchanges in a relaxed setting.

Looking ahead, YP will continue to organize initiatives that combine professional development with cultural and social interaction. The highlight of the calendar will once again be the Sweden-Brazil Career Fair in November 2025, which this year celebrates its 12th edition. For the first time, the fair will feature a dedicated "Work in Sweden" area, designed to provide practical guidance, resources, and inspiration for those interested in pursuing professional opportunities in Sweden, in collaboration with the Swedish Institute. This addition further strengthens the event's role as a comprehensive bridge between Brazilian talent and Swedish institutions.

As we move forward, YP reaffirms its commitment to providing high-quality experiences that contribute to the growth and success of its members, strengthening the ties between Sweden and Brazil.

SWEDISH BUSINESS CLIMATE SURVEY

In May 2025, we launched the new edition of the Brazil Business Climate Survey, part of the global initiative led by Business Sweden and the Swedish Chambers International. This sixth edition gathered responses from 48 Swedish companies of different sizes and sectors, confirming once again the strong presence of Swedish business in Brazil, where companies have been established for over a century and today employ around 50,000 people. Conducted between February and March, the survey is aligned with the broader Global Business Climate Survey, which this year expanded to cover 37 markets worldwide and was presented in Stockholm as a comparative outlook for Swedish companies considering international expansion.

The results for Brazil show a market of cautious optimism. Swedish companies continue to perform strongly, with most expecting revenue growth but fewer planning new investments, reflecting both local economic conditions and global uncertainties. The survey highlighted the following key findings:

- 81% of Swedish companies in Brazil were profitable in 2024, while only 11% registered losses
- 69% expect to grow their revenues in the next twelve months, but just 45% plan to increase local investments – the lowest level since 2020
- 57% perceive Brazil's business climate as regular, 30% as positive and 13% as negative
- Inflation, exchange rate volatility and new tariff measures from the United States were cited as major concerns for the short term
- Trade barriers decreased compared to 2024, but customs duties and local content requirements remain the most relevant challenges
- 29% of companies confirmed that investments in sustainability helped boost their sales, while nearly half see opportunities in renewables, efficiency and mobility solutions

> SWEDCHAM REPRESENTATIVES

- 69% affirmed that being perceived as Swedish benefits their business in Brazil, strengthening reputation and customer trust

Overall, the 2025 edition paints a picture of resilience combined with caution. Profitability remains high and growth expectations are robust, but investment intentions have weakened amid economic and geopolitical uncertainties. At the same time, companies stress that cost-efficiency and adapting products and services to local needs are key to maintaining competitiveness. Despite the challenges, the Swedish footprint in Brazil — grounded in sustainability, innovation and a long-term commitment — continues to provide solid ground for future expansion

HUMAN RIGHTS AND LABOR: A SUPPLIER AWARENESS GUIDE

Building on the ESG Handbook on responsible sourcing released in 2024, Swedcham is proud to introduce a new guide focused on raising supplier awareness and promoting respect for human rights. Developed in collaboration with leading Swedish multinational companies — AAK, ABB, Alfa Laval, Atlas Copco, Assa Abloy, Autoliv, Epiroc, Electrolux, Höganas, Tetra Pak, Scania, and SKF — this material underscores the vital role of businesses in advancing fair and dignified working conditions across supply chains.

These companies, with a strong presence in Brazil, have long been committed to monitoring, improving, and influencing labor practices in line with internationally recognized human rights standards. Their efforts show that responsible business conduct goes beyond compliance — it is about leadership, transparency, and fostering a culture of respect throughout the value chain.

While legislation, regulations, and codes of conduct are essential for setting expectations and requiring ethical behavior, true impact is achieved when compliance is paired with awareness. Rules alone are not enough. A deeper understanding of human rights principles allows companies to move from simply “not doing harm” to actively “doing better” — creating safer, more equitable workplaces.

This year's guide was developed by members of the Swedish-Brazilian Chamber of Commerce, with the support of the Swedish Embassy in Brazil. Its goal is to promote a culture of respect for human rights in the corporate environment, especially among suppliers. By recognizing the human aspect of business, we pave the way for better working conditions, stronger communities, improved productivity, and a reduction in social inequality.

Karin Vecchiatti - Project leader

SWEDCHAM ON YOUTUBE AND SOCIAL MEDIA

In 2025, Swedcham has further consolidated its presence across the main digital platforms — Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn and YouTube — reinforcing its role as a hub of information, connection, and cultural exchange between Sweden and Brazil.

This year, our reach grew steadily, surpassing 70,000 accounts, a clear indicator of the Chamber's growing relevance and visibility in the international business community. Content on innovation, sustainability, international careers, and cultural integration has been particularly successful in engaging members and partners, both in Brazil and abroad.

Digital platforms have also become an essential complement to our in-person events, amplifying their impact and ensuring long-lasting visibility for our activities. Whether it is a corporate visit with our member companies, an ESG Committee debate, or the annual Sweden-Brazil Career Fair, our social media channels expand access to knowledge, strengthen dialogue, and highlight best practices from Swedish companies operating in Brazil.

To meet the growing demands of communication, Swedcham continues its partnership with evcom, producing over 300 pieces of strategic content annually with a reach of over 100 thousand views (per year) across our social media channels, combining the power of strategic communication with creativity and enhancing our digital presence. This collaboration allows us to spotlight our members, showcase success stories, and promote the Sweden-Brazil business and cultural exchange to a wider audience.

We invite all members and partners to connect with us online. By following Swedcham on LinkedIn, Instagram, Facebook and YouTube, you can stay informed about our upcoming events, gain insights into market trends, and take part in the vibrant community that bridges Sweden and Brazil.

Electrolux Group Unveils Its Largest Expansion in Latin America with a 100% Sustainable Factory

As it approaches a century of operations in Brazil, Electrolux Group has taken a bold step toward the future with the inauguration of its most ambitious industrial project in Latin America. Located in the city of São José dos Pinhais, State of Paraná, the new factory represents a R$700 million investment and is the company's first fully sustainable plant in the region.

Designed to align with Group's global goal of achieving carbon neutrality by 2033, the facility operates entirely on renewable electric energy and uses only electric vehicles and equipment. It also incorporates advanced water-saving technologies, natural lighting, and a zero-landfill policy from day one.

Beyond its environmental impact, the plant is a catalyst for local development. It is expected to generate up to 2,000 direct and indirect jobs and foster innovation through the local production of blenders - products previously imported - and fans, for the first time produced worldwide, meaning a new product category to the brand's portfolio. With a projected annual output of over 5 million units by 2027, the site will account for 25% of Electrolux's small appliance revenue in Brazil.

"This factory is a symbol of our commitment to sustainable growth and innovation in Brazil," said Leandro Jasiocha, CEO of Electrolux Group Latin America. "It's not just about producing appliances—it's about creating a better future for people and the planet."

Cartons, a story worth following.

Cartons protect food, benefit people and use mostly renewable materials

Aseptic cartons keep food and beverages safe for up to 12 months without the need for preservatives or energy-intensive refrigeration. The convenience of storing and transporting food without the constraints of refrigeration makes perishable food accessible everywhere. Made mostly from responsibly sourced, renewable materials¹, they score better on climate-impact compared to single-use packaging made primarily from fossil fuel materials², and they can be recycled where adequate collection, sorting, and recycling infrastructures exist at scale.

Go with carton – the pack that protects.

Discover how cartons support resilient food systems at tetrapak.com

1 On average, a Tetra Pak carton is made of approximately 70% paperboard, 25% plastic and 5% aluminium to protect the product inside. Renewable material is content that comes from renewable sources, such as wood from Forest Stewardship Council™ (FSC™) certified forests and other controlled sources and Bonsucro certified sugarcane. 2 Demonstrated by Life Cycle Assessments (LCAs) and product carbon footprint calculations in many markets.
